THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Nov. 19.—The stock market today was under the continued influence of the factors which depressed values yesterday and discouraged speculation for an advance. Probably the outstanding movement of the day was the effort of these factors to bring the market down to the level of the northwestern states to use their influence to contest the operation of the government's policy of protection of the transcontinental group. Union Pacific and St. Paul were especially affected. The bears also were active, and the amount of the engagement of $1,000,000 additional gold for export on Thursday, but there was a large demand to cover later in the day when half of the original amount was still outstanding. The market modelled was seen to be unaffected.

It is still confidently expressed that the offerings of government for redemption will make the market rise, but it is equally well known that more gold goes out. It is not improbable that the selling of the government bonds comes indirectly in part from those who have been speculating in foreign obligations, who have some special strength shown them in individual stocks, notably American Steel and International. Paper on the urgent demand for gold was the largest item of the exports, followed by all kinds of the express companies' stock, owing to the business activity of the country. There were strong spots among the coals and the local stocks. The market stood at a residual point to the close.

Railroad bonds were only moderately active at right recessions. Total sales per values, $3,000,000.

United States refunding 2d declined 14 per cent. on the last call.
